

An identity diagnostic for
James Carter
MAY 17, 2026

IDENTITY ALIGNMENT

57
/ 100

YOUR ARCHETYPE

The Seeker

You know exactly how far you are from the man you are meant to be. You feel the gap every single day. But the fire is lit, you are hungry, and you are willing to face hard truth when it shows up. This is the most dangerous position to be in. The right structure right now changes everything.

COACHABILITY

42 / 100

The three biggest leverage areas in your life right now

These are the three weakest scoring areas in your diagnostic. Address them in this order and the rest of your identity moves with them.

01 No daily protocol. You are at the mercy of motivation, and motivation does not show up most days.

02 Your vision of the future is blurry. You cannot hit a target you cannot see.

03 You cannot name the truth you have been avoiding. Naming it out loud is the first move.

Five signs you are not ready (yet).

This is not a list to make you feel bad. This is a list to make you see clearly. Sit with the ones that landed. Take the action under each one.

1. You spend money on everything except yourself.

Cars, clothes, nights out, holidays, but the moment it is you on the invoice, suddenly it is "too much." The truth of where you actually believe value lives is in your bank statement, not in what you say.

WHAT TO DO

Track every dollar you spend for the next 30 days. The truth is in the numbers.

2. You flinch when someone tells you the truth about you.

If feedback makes you defensive, no coach, no friend, and no system can help you. You will collect more advice than any man alive and still be exactly where you are a year from now.

WHAT TO DO

Ask one person you trust for one piece of hard feedback this week. Sit with it 48 hours before you respond.

3. You are addicted to thinking about change instead of making it.

Plans, vision boards, journals, podcasts. All motion, no action. You have convinced yourself that thinking about the work is the work. It is not.

WHAT TO DO

Pick the smallest concrete action you have been avoiding. Do it before this day ends.

4. You are still letting other people's opinions write your script.

Every time you change your behaviour for someone whose opinion you do not actually want at your funeral, you betray the man you are meant to become. That is a quiet, daily betrayal.

WHAT TO DO

List the five people whose opinions you would want at your funeral. Anyone else's opinion is noise. Read that list every single morning until it lives in your bones.

5. You are using pain as fuel instead of purpose.

Pain runs out. Purpose compounds. Men who run on pain crash the moment things get comfortable. Men who run on purpose keep moving when no one is watching.

WHAT TO DO

Write down who you are becoming and why it matters beyond you in one sentence. Read it before every hard decision.

You are not there yet. That is the point.

Every man on the other side of this work started exactly where you are right now. Reading a list of his own gaps. Deciding whether to look away or do something about it. The five signs above are a map. You know what to do. The only question left is whether you do it.

Read this once a week. Take one action a week. Come back in 90 days and take the calculator again. Show me a different man.

STAY CLOSE WHILE YOU DO THE WORK

Follow on Instagram

Subscribe on YouTube